No. 242.

PARMA, August 27.

WE are informed, that the country people had abſolutely declared that they, at the hazard of their lives, would not ſubmit to pay the new taxes, the farmers of the public revenues of that duchy had laid upon them. Gaz. The infant duke is very uneaſy, as well as his ſubjects, and declared to ſome of their principals, that he was aſoniſhed at their indiſcretion; that they muſt be ſenſible, that he received large ſubſidies from the courts of France and Spain, great part of which would be ſpent among them; and that it was heard they ſhould grudge to the ſubjects of thoſe courts, the privilege of earning a ſmall part of them in his ſervice.

Vaſt preparations are making at Rome, and the beſt painters and artiſts ſet at work, in decorating the churches and ſhrines of the ſaints, for cheriſhing the devotion of pilgrims, at the approaching holy year, or grand Jubilee.——Near 20,000 lb. weight of wax has been already uſed to make Agnus Dei's; and this feſtival has been found ſo profitable, that, from every 100th it is kept every 25th year.——To render the whole more ſolemn and efficacious, the Holy Father has iſſued his bull, as follows:

'By the authority of almighty God, by that of the bleſſed St. Peter and St. Paul, and by our own, we appoint the celebration of the general and univerſal Jubilee for the next year 1750, to begin from the firſt veſpers before Chriſtmas-day, and to continue all the year.

'During this whole year we grant the indulgence, the entire pardon and remiſſion of all their ſins, to all the faithful of each ſex, who, being truly contrite, and having duly made confeſſion, and received the communion, ſhall devoutly viſit at leaſt once a day, for the ſpace of thirty days, if they are inhabitants of Rome, or if they are ſtrangers, for fifteen days, the churches of St. Peter and St. Paul, St. John of Lateran, St. Mary Majore, and ſhall there pray for the peace of the holy church, the extirpation of hereſies, the union of catholic princes, and the happineſs and tranquility of all Chriſtian people.'

All ſincere penitents, who ſhall ſet out for the Jubilee, but ſhall either upon their journey, or after their arrival at Rome, be prevented by death or ſickneſs, or any other reaſonable impediment, are intitled to the ſame privileges.

Leghorn, Auguſt 22. Upon the intelligence that our magiſtrate of health has received, that the contagion rages at Smyrna, Algiers, and other parts adjacent, proper precautions have been taken for keeping all veſſels coming from thoſe parts at a diſtance from our coaſts; and all ſuch veſſels are obliged, by expreſs orders from our ſaid magiſtrate of health, to obſerve a very rigorous quarantine, and one of a long duration.

This fatal misfortune proves a prodigious ſhock to our trade and commerce, which, 'tis thought, would otherwiſe have been ſoon in a very flouriſhing condition.

By advices lately received here from Baſtia, we are credibly informed, that the natives of Corſica are determined to die upon the ſpot, with their pieces upon their ſhoulders, rather than to ſubmit to the government of Genoa, upon any other terms, than thoſe which have been propoſed to them by the marquis de Cuzay, and which have been ſent by him to the court of Verſailles for his moſt Chriſtian majeſty's final determination.

Rome, Auguſt 23. In the night of the 11th inſtant, there aroſe ſuch a prodigious tempeſt at ſea, that the waves overflowed the large foreſt of Ciſterna, tore up the trees thereof by the roots, overſet all the cottages that lay round about it, deſtroyed all the cattle that were grazing at a diſtance; in a word, render'd the whole foreſt ſuch a melancholy ſcene of deſolation, that even the wild beaſts made their advances to the very houſes in Ciſterna.

The damage that this tempeſt has done the prince of Ciſterna, will amount to no leſs than 30,000 crowns.

LONDON.

Extract of a Letter from Goſport, dated Auguſt 1.

'On Wedneſday evening was inter'd in the chapel yard in this town, Thomas Scott, and James Read, two of the unfortunate men that ſuffered on board the Chefterfield for mutiny; the pall for Scott was held up by ſix young women of credit, dreſſed in white, ſupported by ſix young men; the women had handſome breaſt-knots and gloves, and the men gloves and favours; before his corpſe walked three of the young men that received his majeſty's moſt gracious pardon, in the ſame dreſs they were to have been executed in; their modeſt deportment and concern, greatly affected the ſpectators, who were more numerous than I ever ſaw at a funeral in this town; cloſe to his corpſe followed that of James Read, which was ſupported by tradeſmen and others of credit, followed by all their ſhipmates that remained in town; in this ſolemn proceſſion they walked to the burying ground, and were inter'd very near each other; after the funeral ſervice was over, one of the men that was pardoned, ſwooned away twice in the chapel yard, and was forced to be carried home, and remains ſtill in a bad ſtate of health.'

Auguſt 5. We are credibly inform'd, that count de Teſſin the preſident of his Swediſh majeſty's chancery, has ſent circular letters to all his miniſters who are reſident in any foreign courts; and notwithſtanding the report that hath been induſtriouſly ſpread abroad, that Sweden had entered into a private contract with the Ottoman Porte, whereby the grand Seignior had covenanted and agreed to uſe his utmoſt endeavour to eſtabliſh the prince ſucceſſor on the Swediſh throne, upon the deceaſe of his father; yet, in reality, there were no juſt grounds or foundation for ſuch an inſinuation; and that his majeſty, as well as his ſon, had the intereſt of the preſent happy eſtabliſhment of Sweden at heart; and that both of them would uſe their utmoſt endeavours to maintain and preſerve all thoſe rights and privileges which they have hitherto enjoyed, if poſſible, in tranquility and peace.

On the 16th the Doge of Genoa, and the ſeveral colleges held a chapter in the church belonging to the Carmelites; and we hear, that tho' the city militia had been diſcharged the week before, they were formed again into four diſtinct companies, and took the reſpective poſts which the government had aſſigned them.

They tell us from Hanover, that the reaſon why the empreſs of Ruſſia, notwithſtanding the inſtances of the court of Verſailles, ſo long delays ſending a miniſter thither, is, that her imperial majeſty has not receiv'd the ſatisfaction due to her, on account of the conduct of the two laſt French miniſters that reſided at that court; as alſo in regard to the count de la Saſſe beſides the diſcovery made of the cloſe connections and intrigues between France and two other courts, which we preſume muſt be Pruſſia and Sweden. So that here are good grounds for a war, and the ſword will probably ſoon be unſheathed, unleſs certain ſtate quacks in E—— can find means to keep matters quiet in the North, by another definitive treaty of perpetual peace.

BRISTOL.

Auguſt 26. Laſt Thurſday about five o'clock in the evening, Joſeph Abteny the Swediſh ſailor, who was condemned at Glouceſter for the murder of Mary Wilſmire, the young ſervant maid, near the White Ladies, was brought from thence by a party of chain'd on horſeback, and guarded by ſome of the ſheriff's officers, to the Fountain Inn, without Lawford's gate, where a vaſt number of people reſorted to ſee him; and was viſited by both Proteſtant and Romiſh miniſters. He being a Roman catholic

behold. By all appearance, he seem'd to be very penitent, and desired the prayers of the people for his poor soul.

Yesterday a little before ten o'clock in the morning, he was convey'd in a cart, to Dardham Down, where after some time spent in prayer, he was executed on the same gibbet with Burnet and Pain (who suffer'd death for the murder of the late Sr Robert Cann's coachman five years ago) and afterwards hung in chains thereon.

Before he was turned off, he refus'd the assistance of all the Protestant ministers that had attended him several times, declaring he died in the catholic faith, and believed in all the articles thereof; confessed his guilt; and delivered a paper to the sheriff ——This refusal of the Protestants, 'tis presumed, was owing to some sudden check from his priest——His chief confidence seemed to be placed in the operation of his Holy water, a small phial of which he had with him at the gallows, which he took out of his pocket just before he was turned off; and, having poured some of it into the palm of his hand, and dipping his finger therein, crossed his forehead and breast several times, and then laying his hand upon his breast and heart, submitted to his fate with great resolution.

He expressed a great concern, before his execution, at his being to be hung in chains, and said he did not care if they quarter'd his body, so that it was not to be hung up in the air, for a prey to the birds.

The same morning, about eleven o'clock, Jeremiah Hayes, a native of Ireland, and a stout seaman, condemned for the murder of Eleanor Dillard, by tying her up in a sack, and throwing her into the river, (in concert with two other seamen not yet apprehended) was conveyed in a cart from Newgate, attended by the under sheriff, city constables, and the sheriff's officers, to St. Michael's-Hill, and there executed on the gallows; he dyed a Roman catholic.

While in the condemn'd room, a few hours before his execution, he declared his innocency to divers persons, and wished that he might never see the face of God, or enter the kingdom of Heaven, if he was guilty of the murder; and that he was as free from that guilt, as the child unborn.

A few days ago, he sent for his prosecutors, in order to forgive them; and because they did not come, he persisted that it was a strong instance of his innocency, and of their having sworn falsly against him. That he long'd for the time to depart this life, and that every hour seem'd as a year.

At the place of execution, the Rev. Mr. Davis pray'd with him about half an hour; after which he spent near half an hour more in talking to the people, and when the halter was about his neck he pull'd his cap from his face, divers times, still renewing his discourse to one or other; and about one minute after the cart drew away, and he suspended by the neck, he even then pull'd his cap quite off with both hands, and endeavour'd to put it on again, which not compleating, the executioner pull'd it down over his face.

LONDON.

Sept. 16. Yesterday came advice from Stow, in Buckinghamshire, of the death of the Right Hon. the lord viscount and baron Cobham, colonel of a regiment of dragoons, field marshal, and one of the lords of the privy council, &c.

October 6. We hear that a proclamation will speedily be publish'd for the meeting of the parliament on the 16th of November, to sit for the dispatch of business.

Yesterday a great quantity of ordnance stores were shipp'd on board a transport for Port-Mahon, on board of which several deserters from lord Harry Beauclerck's regiment of foot, lately gone thither, will embark for that garrison, in order to be tried by a general court martial. Several recruits, now in the Savoy, will also embark on board the said vessel.

All the Christian slaves in Barbary will be set at liberty, before the renewal of the treaty with those states; for the performance of which the Tripoline ambassador is come hither.

Another grandee from those states is said to be on his passage for this kingdom.

By the last Dutch mail we have advice, that 13000 men are disbanded in Holland, when at the same time the French have ordered all their officers to their posts. We have also advice, that the lady Hyndford, one of the ladies of the bed chamber to the princess of Orange, has resign'd her employment, and is on her return to England.

It is matter of some speculation, why the hostages are still detained in France: The French say, there is a Secret Article not yet complied with.

'Tis reported that two shillings in the pound will be taken off the land-tax, and five per cent off the commerce; and, to balance this, the four per cents are to be reduced to three and a half.

From the Daily Advertiser of yesterday, we are assured, 'That M. de Caylus, governor of Martinico, hath proposed 'to Mr. Greenville, governor of Barbados, conjointly to evacuate the island of Tobago, without invalidating the right 'his most Christian, or Britannic majesty, may form to that 'place; and that orders have been sent to Mr. Greenville, to 'agree to the said proposal, and to proceed immediately to the 'execution thereof.'

Query, If the above is a Fact, is it not a concession in favour of Le Grande Monarque?

Letters from Constantinople assure us, that in a divan lately held, the new mufti had declared, that the only way to dispel the discontent of the soldiers, and to prevent a general revolt, was immediately to declare war against some Christian power; in consequence of which, orders had been given for transporting a great body of troops from Asia into Europe; and that a great corps of Janizaries had also orders to hold themselves in readiness to march upon the first notice.

By advice from Newcastle, the commissioners of excise have explained the late Glass Act of Parliament after a new way, and thereby have subjected common window glass to the high duty of 9*s.* 4*d.* per hundred weight, of all materials the same is made of, equal to the duty of crown glass; notwithstanding common glass, for the last two years, paid only 2*s.* 4*d.* per hundred weight.

Upon the excise officers demanding the above extraordinary high duty upon common glass, the manufacturers put out their fires, and petition'd the lords of the treasury for relief, which was not obtained; therefore the manufacturers are come now to a resolution, to advance the price of glass double of what it was before the duty was laid thereon.

ANNAPOLIS.

We hear, that on Saturday last HENRY HOLLYDAY, Esq; High Sheriff of Queen Anne's County, was married in Talbot County to Miss ANNE ROBINS, a well accomplish'd young Gentlewoman, with a good Fortune.

We are informed, that the Body of Mr. James Riley, Ship-Carpenter, whom we mentioned some Time ago as supposed to be lost, was taken up on the Eastern Shore, the Beginning of last Month. The other two Men, who were lost with him, are not yet heard of.

We hear that a Dead Warrant is issued for the Execution of a Negro Fellow, condemned at last Calvert County Court for a Rape: As also for a Negro Fellow, condemned at Cecil County Especial Court, for burning his Master's Houses. They will both afterwards be hung in Chains.

A Dead Warrant is likewise issued for the Execution of John Murphy, in Frederick County, condemned at an especial Court there, for Felony and Burglary.
